Participants are mindful of the shared interest in promoting economic cooperation among the economies in the region to bring about greater economic and social benefits and well-being for their respective peoples and contribute to the stability, prosperity and progress of the entire region.

Participation in the PECC process will depend on a commitment to economic cooperation in the Pacific. Notes to the PECC Charter

The PECC Charter defines the purpose, regulation and structure of PECC. It is not a document for detailing all the procedures and decision making criteria in the organization. That is left to the continuing evolution of good practice, as reported in the minutes and reports of the organization. This builds on the shared trust among the membership, based on their common adoption of the goals of the organization.

The nature of the annual General Meeting changes as a result of this Charter. It returns to its original role of being a clearing house for the work of PECC's task forces. Its program would be determined by the composition of Task Force activities in the preceding and forthcoming years. The main participants at the Meeting would be PECC member economy representatives. Experts would be invited as appropriate and feasible to comment on past work and the future work program. The success of this approach depends on the selection of topics of Task Force activities which engage the attention of the audience.

The Standing Committee's role as the highest decision body in PECC is re-affirmed in this new Charter. The Standing Committee (and with delegation to the Executive Committee) is responsible for the design of a work program which contributes to its goals.
